Updated: 4 December 2024

The RPA has been in existence for 96 years, a long running entity that has always enjoyed the support of Command. For members, leaving the Victoria Police can be a celebration of a long and satisfying career, for others, it can be the excitement of a new career challenge. For most however, there can be a feeling of disconnect, because policing is like no other profession and the shared experiences and shared friendships are in most instances lifelong.

Groups like the RPA are fantastic vehicles to retain connections. The RPA is not the only group available to reach out to upon resignation or retirement. There is Police Veterans Victoria, The Past and Present Women in Policing Association, Police Legacy, The International Police Association, The International and Overseas Police Association, The Police Historical Society and The Police Museum. All groups offer different services, all have various aspects to them, but all offer the same overall focus, connectivity, support and the knowledge that you no longer need be working for the Force to still feel part of the Team.

The RPA, being the older of the groups, our focus is social networking with past work colleagues. The RPA, publish a quarterly Gazette, which provides a wealth of information and stories about the past and the current, with input gladly received from and by our members. We also provide information about regular gatherings and reunions across not only Victoria, but across Australia.

If you do not know the location of current RPA members who can act as proposer and seconder for your application. Complete the form and email to the Secretary along with an electronic transfer of $50 to RPA Bank Vic account 910895 S1 or 704230 Account 100057802. Subscription of $30 annually and $20 joining fee.

Membership is open to all who have served in Victoria Police, or other recognised Police Force, left through age retirement, medical reasons or by resignation, and are of good character.

Once your application is received and processed by the Membership Officer Alan Kilby 24196 you will receive a Welcome Pack including a car sticker and lapel pin. We look forward to welcoming you.
